We received notification from NSF's Division of Information Services (DIS) that the NSF computer system had been attacked by malicious malware. DIS was made aware of the intrusion by an individual<sup>1</sup> unrelated to NSF. DIS activated the Computer Incident Response Team, identified the infected machines, removed them from the network, and took the proper steps to ensure the computers were clear of malware before being returned to use. DIS has continued to monitor the system and has identified no additional machines as being infected. This attack is similar to other attacks throughout the government and the investigation is being conducted by US-CERT.
